'Forgery Hit In War on Dog Races

Wholesale fraud and misrepresentation, and 10,000 "forgeries" on the 28,000 signatures of the New England Anti-Gambling Association's anti-dog-racing petitions, were charged before the State Ballot Law Commission today.

A battle royal centered about the fact that there have been two petitions circulated, one calling for the outlawing of dog-racing and the other calling for the outlawing of dog-racing and "authoritative" horse racing.

WHY HORSES EXCITED
This second petition, in legal verbiage, outlawed dog-racing and "authoritative" horse racing.

Professor Edward W. Hadley, head of the Anti-Gambling Association, insisted that this document—the Anti-Gambling Association circulating a petition to "authoritative" horse racing—was one of those change things necessitated by the quirk of the law.

WHY DR. LOWELL REFUSED
Dr. A. Lawrence Lowell, president emeritus of Harvard, however, voiced the attitude of many algebras of the first petition.

Asked by former District Attorney Timothy Callahan, representing dog track interests, whether he

Kennedy to Take Family Abroad, He Tells Runyon

"I'll Do Anything 'The Boss' Wants," Answers 'Joe' as Noted Writer Gets Exclusive Interview

Damon Runyon, famed columnist and writer, discussed the ambassadorship to the Court of St. James with Joseph P. Kennedy at the latter's Palm Beach villa and in the following exclusive interview written for the International News Service and Boston Evening American describes East Boston's best known boy's affection for his chief, President Roosevelt.

JOSEPH P. KENNEDY

PALM BEACH, Fla., Dec. 20 (INS)—We asked the picturesque Joe Kennedy today if he is going to take that job of ambassador to Great Britain and, while he would not give us a direct yes or no, we left with the impression that he is. Indeed, we would risk a fair bet on it.

"I'll do anything the boss wants me to do," he said.

"The boss" is Mr. Roosevelt. A lot of the lads around the President, including Uncle Jim Farley, refer to him as "The boss."

"Would you take your entire family with you to England?" we inquired.

That is an innocent question on the surface, but observe the guile concealed in it. The answer must necessarily reflect the thought of the witness.

"All but my two older boys who are in school," replied Mr. Kennedy.

That, we think, indicates more than casual consideration.

He has nine children, the eldest 22, and the youngest 6, and when they are all assembled with the father and mother for a photograph, you have one of the finest looking family groups in America.

We saw Mr. Kennedy before news came of the death of Ambassador Bingham in Baltimore, a sad event not unanticipated. It was generally known that Mr. Bingham was quite seriously ill.

It was Mr. Bingham's illness, and the certainty that it would be necessary to replace him at the Court of St. James that brought Mr. Kennedy's name into the news as his possible successor.

A couple of weeks ago, a suggestion that created an amazing amount of gossip and speculation in the business and political world.

"What on earth would Joe Kennedy want with that job?" everybody asked.

You see, Mr. Kennedy is regarded as one of the President's most important men. He is officially chairman of the Maritime Commission, which is going to build a lot of new ships for our merchant marine, but aside from that, he is one of the administration's chief advisers, and in that role alone he is considered of far more importance than could be implied by any official

Nephew Drives Uncle's Car on Rails, Flees

SALISBURY, Dec. 20—He was mad clean through after an argument with his uncle, so an 18-year-old Salisbury boy took the uncle's car and abandoned it on the B. & M. railroad tracks in Rowley. A speeding train did the rest. State police from the Topsham barracks are seeking the youth today. They traced what was left of the car found in the wreckage. The uncle, who did not prefer charges, said the argument began when he accused his nephew, who lives with him, of being lazy as they washed dishes last night.

2 INJURED GIRLS WIN $34,000 FROM MAYOR GREENWOOD

FITCHBURG, Dec. 20—Mayor Robert E. Greenwood of Fitchburg has awarded $34,000 to two high school girls and their father as a result of an automobile accident in Fitchburg, 1935, in which the girls were killed. The award was made to the father, Henry A. Gould, and $10,000 to his wife, Jennie Gould. The five other girls hurt in the accident have agreed to a reference of damages, the amounts of which have not been made public. It was stated, Miss Keating and Miss Gould and their parents, however, were dissatisfied and took action in the inferior court. Suits against Mrs. Judith Greenwood, Mayor Greenwood's wife, were dismissed by the jury with findings for the defendant. According to testimony offered during the trial, Mayor Greenwood was driving on the left side of the road when his car crashed into an auto containing the seven girls. Miss Keating was driving the automobile. Mayor Greenwood carried $100,000 liability insurance. Including the jury award today, total damages to the car will be some $77,000, it was stated.

Japs in New Denial on Panay

SHANGHAI, Dec. 20 (AP)—The Japanese military attaché today issued a report on the sinking of the United States gunboat Panay, which contradicted virtually every statement previously made by American naval officers and British, Italian and American survivors.

The report of Major General Kuniaki Harada, purported to be "the sum total of war officers' investigation" of the bombing of the Panay and three Standard Oil Company vessels December 12.

In conflict with the stories of survivors, Harada's statement: 1—Denied that Japanese bombs fired on the Panay as it was sinking.

2—Asserted the gunboat was moving at the time of the incident, when officially it had been reported anchored for more than two hours in the Yangtze river 27 miles above Nanking.

The report also conflicted with a Japanese foreign office statement from Tokyo to the effect that Japanese army boats machine-gunned the Panay by mistake.

Asked about the foreign office statement, Harada reiterated his own report was "based on investigation."

After the statement, Harada said:

High Court Bars Wire-Tapping

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20 (INS)—The Supreme Court, in a far-reaching decision, today outlawed "wire-tapping" by federal officers as a means of obtaining evidence in criminal cases. The decision was 7 to 2.

The high court set aside conviction of four men, tried in federal court in New York on a charge of kidnaping, on the ground that the government illegally used "wire-tapping" evidence.

The decision is the first major ruling of the court on "wire-tapping," since the famous 5-4 decision of prohibition days when Justice Brandeis, in the minority, branded wire-tapping a "dirty business."

Since that time Congress has enacted the federal communications act, with a direct prohibition against "wire-tapping" or divulging contents of messages.

Sheehan Hunts Killer Of Breen in N.H.

Other highlights today in the gangland slaying of David J. "Beano" Breen, Boston's toughest racketeer:

1—Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty charges evidence of alleged graft has been uncovered among officers of his own department.

2—The police commissioner further charges that a $50,000 slush fund is being raised to oust him. Timilty indicates drastic police shakeup.

3—Three City Hospital orders face hearing tomorrow in connection with charges of victimizing the dead, including Breen.

4—Minus the usual gangster pomp, simple funeral services conducted for Breen.

The racket men he ruled with iron fists, the gangsters who feared him, were still afraid of "Beano" Breen today—even in death.

Those things he did "business" with every day of the week stayed away as simple funeral services were held today for "Beano" Breen.

Boston's toughest racketeer.

It was a funeral without the usual gangster pomp—but outside the Metropolitan funeral service chapel, 300 Commonwealth avenue, as police head and that a powerful politician was heading the move.

Timilty indicated that his findings would mean a drastic shakeup, at least in the South End district, where Breen was moved down Friday morning, and might extend into various other police precincts throughout the city.

"It's a fight to the finish and I don't care whose toes I step on," Timilty charged today.

Included among those suspected of being on gangster's payroll are officers hitherto respected as "untouchables."

This startling charge was linked with Timilty's additional allegations that racket chiefs are sponsoring a $500,000 slush fund to oust him as police head and that a powerful politician was heading the move.

Timilty Reveals Police 'Grafting'

Commissioner Plans Cleanup; Claims Big Fund Raised to Oust Him

Timilty stated in discussing a three-cornered dispute between racketeers, politicians and police officials.

The grave charges came while investigators were deep in a mass of murder developments, any one of which might hold the true solution to why "Beano" Breen was slain.

New phases which held police attention today were:

1—That Breen was well on the way to making a name for himself as a high-paid power in the underworld of strong-arm acts breaking.

2—That the murder victim made a flat refusal two weeks ago to Breen's chief gang overlord to stop a large scale money-laundering operation and horse race racket.

3—Police said they believe they know the identity of the Breen killer.

RAISING BIG FUND

Commissioner Timilty declined to state whether or not he would present charges against certain of his men before Attorney General P. A. Dwyer.

He did, however, state he would leave no stone unturned to expose an alleged attempt by underworld leaders to remove him as police head.

He said secret meetings had been held and contributions collected toward the alleged "Beano" fund.

The fund was to be raised by gamblers, club owners who are making time under the protection of the 1, 2, 3, liquor monopoly and others handpicked by strict police surveillance.

The fund was to be turned over as a reward to a powerful underworld figure.

Information that Preston had actually walked into the Back Bay hotel last Friday was given by Captain John J. McCarthy of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation. The police official was given the information by persons who knew Preston and immediately recognized him.

ORDERLIES ARE HELD

Alleged confessions of victimizing the dead at City Hospital were drawn from two orderlies who implicated a third man, according to police.

Those held at the Warren avenue station were John J. Corcoran, 35, head orderly on the hospital accident floor; Edward J. Murphy, 26, of Dudley street, Roxbury; and Thomas Thornton, 24, of Bennett street, East Boston, also orderedlies.

Corcoran lives in Charlestown and is a former candidate for the City Council. He recently reported to police he overheard a subtle plot by a young couple to a restaurant and called it after following a youth and girl to the Charlestown river.

The three orderlies were held for further questioning and police said they would appear in Municipal court tomorrow.

At the same time police revealed they were investigating "three other specific cases" of alleged larceny at the hospital. More arrests were promised by police.

Authorities stated that they were seeking the "fence" to whom was allegedly stolen jewelry.

The alleged jewelry was revealed by a police investigation launched by the slain Robert J. Kelly, 26, well known Back Bay sporting man, who was shot to the hospital near death after a hit-and-run accident.

A diamond stickpin, valued at $750, and $40 in cash were taken from the victim, police now charge following statements taken from Thornton and Murphy. Corcoran denied statements made by both of these men.

In the investigation, police said they also discovered why Breen was found to have only 25 cents in his pocket. They said a money belt containing more than $200 was taken from him as he lay dying.

valuable which also was taken at first, but later put back, police said.

FACE "LINEUP"

Murphy, in the police "lineup" today, denied taking Kelly's $700 diamond stickpin, but admitted receiving it from Thornton, who was slain, said was half of Kelly's money.

Thornton, in the "lineup" admitted taking the stickpin. He put it in his pocket, he said, and explained he was wearing another suit of clothes at the time. When police went to his home to search the suit, however, they found no stickpin. Thornton insisted he didn't know what had become of it.

Thornton, in the "lineup" admitted, too, that he received $750 when "Beano" Breen was brought in. He asserted Corcoran gave him the money. Corcoran denied everything, said it all was a "lie."

Police had questioned and planned to question again many of the city's most notorious racketeers. All have disclaimed knowledge of any reason why "Beano" was spotted.

Yet, despite their alibis, police have learned Breen may have been slain when a leading gang chief, long feared by all except the "deadly" "Beano," had decreed that he should not spread out in front of him gambling and horse rooms.

Breen's answer was to laugh. In his face and open up a "Tommy" street South End, horse parlor and place where he had planned to take charge of the entire district.

Breen was powerful enough to be given a "country" warning. Other racketeers who had been tried in the last decade had been given a "country" warning, meaning that they should not spread out in front of him gambling and horse rooms.

It was learned that police have information revealing that Breen had been spotted by racketeers. Invites into Everett, planning to open a meat shop in the square, despite opposition from the mayor. Police had information that Breen spent $200 in the Everett.

3 Orderlies Held in Breen Theft

EDWARD J. MURPHY JOHN CORCORAN THOMAS THORNTON OFFICER PATRICK CROWLEY Three Boston City Hospital orderlies held on suspicion of larceny at theft of money taken from patient sent to the hospital.

Roxbury, John Corcoran, Charlestown, and Thomas Thornton, East Boston, Corcoran denies any knowledge of these alleged larcenies. They are in custody of Officer Crowley.

COLLAPSES ON STREET

Police, according to Wednesday account, staggered down five flights of stairs and collapsed in the midst of a holiday crowd of shoppers after the girl he showed her went off accidentally, sending a shiver through his body.

Miss Adamczyk said City Marshal Charles Vane of Lawrence that the two men posed as police officers Friday night when they accosted her and two other girls.

The girl declared she was walking with her sister, Helen, and Stephen Hinds of Dracut when the trio approached them and asserted they were looking for a young man of yours reported annoying Dracut girls.

Van Hinds and West denied the charge, asserting Poles posed as an officer, but they did not.

by state police at Andover Sunday for a traffic violation, but turned over to Boston authorities for questioning in connection with the Breen case.

The three, according to Captain Thomas Conolly of the South station, will be turned over to the state police at Andover.

James Wilson of Roxbury and Ralph Teala of the South End, two bellhops at the Metropolitan Hotel, where Breen was murdered, were requested after police received reports that the two had been threatened.

Police said they were witnesses to the slaying and also had witnessed a fight in which the bodyguard of a notorious gangster was involved.

The threats to the bellhops were reported to have been made by telephone.

Inspector William Goldstein and Benjamin Goodman questioned many labor chiefs whose names and telephone numbers were found in Breen's office records.

Timilty made another inspection of the premises, including an adjacent night club and a private entrance to the hotel.

He said that certain employees of the Metropolitan Hotel and certain men connected with the hotel have not told the truth about what they saw in the lobby where Breen was shot, Timilty said.

Breen Is Buried Coles, Nahant's Fire Hero, Dies

Robert Coles, former fire chief of Nahant, who was slain as the man who saved that town from a disastrous conflagration fifteen years ago, died today at his home, 11 Willow street, after a brief illness.

When flames swept the Bass Point section and threatened to engulf all of Nahant, Coles sent a fire engine to the scene.

Nahant's fire equipment was inadequate and the blaze was gaining rapidly when the Boston fireboat arrived and got the fire under control.

Coles, born in England, lived in Nahant for half a century. For years prior to his retirement service as fire chief, he had driven a horse-drawn barge along the beach road between Lynn and Nahant. He is survived by three sons and three daughters. Funeral services will be conducted in the village church at 2 p. m. Wednesday.

Bandit Car Found Ready for Holdups

A stolen automobile recovered by police in South Boston had two sets of registration plates covering the regular plates and was equipped, police say, for use in holdups.

The automobile is owned by Joseph Hourihan, Clementia street, Dorchester, a special officer in the South Boston garage, who fired two shots as he drove the car, leaving the thieves in a beach wagon.

Throne No Lure, Horthy Reiterates

Spink, Hungary, Dec. 20 (AP)—Hungary's regent, Admiral Nicholas Horthy, said today that for the second time in 17 years he wanted to make clear he is not seeking to become king. Dracut Girl 18, Held With 2 In Shooting

Bail Fixed at $10,000 As Judge Hints of Graver Charges

LAWRENCE, Dec. 20—Pretty Wanda Adamczyk, 18, of Dracut, was held in jail at $10,000 today on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the fatal shooting of James W. Poole, private detective.

At the same time, Judge Frederick Chandler, sitting at a possible graver charge, held Poole's alleged partner and another man under bail of $1000 each as material witnesses and suspicious persons.

The court arraignment followed shortly after police in Lowell court obtained warrants charging the two men with "impersonating a police officer." They were Nathaniel Van Hinds and Edward J. West, 31, a former milk worker, both of Lawrence.

GIRL IN CALM

Wanda, calm and showing no signs of strain in a low tone pleaded not guilty to the manslaughter charge. Her attorney, Maurice A. Donahue of Lowell, indicated after the hearing that he may ask the court tomorrow to lower the bail to allow the girl to spend Christmas with her family.

REFUSES LOW BAIL

Continuing the case until Dec. 31, Judge Chandler indicated the charge may be changed when he refused a request to lower bail for the two men, asserting:

"I can't help it. A man was shot in an office. This may turn out to be murder for a known. I cannot reduce the bail under the circumstances."

Originally the girl was held in bail of $1000 and the two men under bond of $200 each.

Details of the motive killing were revealed when Wanda told her neighbor, Police Chief Vincent O'Leary of Dracut, that Poole had been shot accidentally after he attempted to force her to examine a gun in his Lawrence office.

The State's case was presented by Sergeant Martin V. O'Sullivan of Lawrence, who asked the continuance. He filed a brief detailing the girl's story and the events leading up to the shooting.

4 Columns Move on City; U. S. Warships Rush to the City

SHANGHAI, Dec. 20 (AP)—The Sino-Japanese war spread north and south today as Japanese troops launched a vicious attack against Hangchow, southwest of Shanghai, while Chinese forces in the north-east port of Tientsin destroyed huge amounts of Japanese property.

At the same time, with a Japanese assault against the busy southern port of Canton believed imminent, foreign nationals there were warned to prepare to flee "at a moment's notice," according to official advice from Hongkong.

The city of Hangchow was said to have been moved toward the city.

Nipponese troops were reported within 20 miles of Hangchow, having penetrated Chingchow in the north after a flanking movement that forced Chinese defenses to retreat.

Ten thousand foreigners were reported in Hangchow at present.

Meanwhile, with extreme violence reported at the southern port of Tientsin, the United States light cruiser, USS Tracy, was there in protest and if necessary evacuate a group of American citizens.

The American patrol ship Sacramento already in Tientsin harbor. A number of British warships also were on hand to take care of British interests.

Three hundred Americans and 500 British are at Tientsin.

With the situation in the North tense with dynamite, it was reported that the Japanese plan to attempt a landing party at Hankow in the south, possibly tomorrow, with the aim of invading Southern China and getting a foothold there against Canton under way.

An invasion would have grave peril of involving Britain's crown colony and naval base, Hongkong.

Increasing apprehension regarding events in the Canton-Hongkong region, it was reported, has led French anti-aircraft guns fired yesterday, and that the British closed the gates of their concessions in the city.

The Britons, it was stated, moved a heavy gun to their area in case of a Japanese attack against Canton.

Woman Tells Of Fleeing Jap Bombs

Eden Is Silent On U. S.-British China Action

LONDON, Dec. 20 (AP)—Clamping a lid of silence on all parliamentary discussion of Anglo-American cooperation in the Far East, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden today said that neither he nor the British government would discuss the crisis which might be averted in the future.

The Foreign Secretary told the House that he would "not likely be able to make statement on London-Washington conversations at any time."

Eden's silence was greeted by members of the Opposition, who pressed the opportunity, Eden reiterated.

Simultaneously, however, a series of official statements were made by Geoffrey Shakespeare, parliamentary secretary to the Admiralty, regarding the House that orders had been placed for immediate construction of 11 new battleships.

Eden stated Britain has "no intention of repeating the error of the Versailles government set up at Peking under Japanese auspices."

Asked whether the Japanese government would be held responsible for the damage to British property in China, Eden said:

"The Japanese government is responsible for the damage to British property in China, and we are doing our utmost to secure compensation for it."

MRS. MARY A. CREEDON

Forced to flee from the peril of Japanese bombs and military invasion in Peking, China, Mrs. Mary A. Creedon arrived in Boston today after five months of travel.

Mrs. Creedon, who lived in Peking, was a passenger on the Anchor Line steamer Transvaal, which docked here today with 25 other passengers.

Mrs. Creedon had been in Peking since the fall of 1936. She had planned to return last year, but the shipping strike tied up vessels from China and she got a job as secretary to a Chinese woman, who was proprietor of a guest house in Peking.

When the killing of a Japanese soldier on Marco Polo bridge, outside Peking, by a Chinese soldier, touched off the Sino-Japanese fighting in July, Mrs. Creedon planned immediate departure.

"I caught a Japanese freighter warned us to get out," said Mrs. Creedon. "It was a very difficult thing to do."

She had to stay in Peking two weeks after the Japanese had warned that they would bomb the city within a week. Finally, on July 28, with a group of other residents, she left Tientsin by train. Ordinarily the trip takes only two hours, Japanese troops there, however, had the right of way and our train repeatedly was side-tracked.

"It took 12 hours to get to Tientsin. We had food and no drinking water. From Tientsin we went to Tientsin, but instead of the usual one-hour trip it took us eight hours to get there."

"I caught a Japanese freighter to Kobe, Japan, and from there sailed to Seattle, thence to the Mediterranean and finally to Scotland. I am going to Honolulu at once to have my first Christmas dinner at home in 20 years."

Mrs. Creedon's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Creedon, of Boston. Her father-in-law is Mr. J. H. Creedon, of Boston. Her mother-in-law is Mrs. J. H. Creedon, of Boston. Her father-in-law is Mr. J. H. Creedon, of Boston. Her mother-in-law is Mrs. J. H. Creedon, of Boston.

Spanish Rebels Hold Teruel

MADRID, Dec. 20 (AP)—An entirely surrounded and greatly outnumbered Spanish rebel force today held the city of Teruel today in the face of the heaviest government attack on the central front since the drive on Brunete last week.

Last insurgent defenses outside the city, which had been the tip of a Spanish thrusting at government communication lines between Madrid and Valencia, were destroyed in three days of siege.

The city was cut off from the rest of insurgent Spain. Government troops there reported they were attempting to smash through and relieve the garrison.

11 New Warships In 10 Years Is U. S. Plan

Long-Range Building Aimed as Tension On Panay Gains

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20 (AP)—At tension over Japan's bombing and sinking of the U. S. S. Panay, increased today, the United States announced today that it had ordered the construction of 11 new battleships during the next decade.

The President's budget will call for funds to be provided during the next fiscal year for two of these new 35,000-ton battleships, at least two light cruisers and eight destroyers and six submarines.

The battleships will cost about $60,000,000 each and will mount 16-inch guns, the most powerful naval armament in the world.

Two other new battleships, already made to the budget bureau, are under construction, the first to be laid down in the fifteen years which followed the Washington arms limitation conference in 1922, are now under construction.

Twelve months ago there were approximately 100 warships under construction in navy and army shipyards. Today there are about 20 on the stocks, while many launched and commissioned during the war.

To complete the Vinson program, set in addition to the warships now provided for, the navy will call for funds for construction of eight new destroyers and six submarines per year for the next two years.

The cruiser program, set in addition to the warships now provided for, the navy will call for funds for construction of eight new destroyers and six submarines per year for the next two years.

The World War. Suffering every sign of pain, he implored her to leave him.

ATTENDED BY NUNS

By a strange coincidence, this enemy of Catholicism and militant apostle of a new Aryan anti-Christian religion spent the final days of his life attended by nuns in the Catholic Josephine hospital.

Chief of the hospital was directed by Professor Ludwig Kohlhauser, who reported on the general, and who would attend patients at no other institution.

During the past week it had seemed the general would recover, but his organs had failed and his condition was improving rapidly, and had ceased issuing bulletins on his condition.

The sudden release last night, however, showed that his weakened constitution was unequal to absorbing transfused blood.

MURKIN BY HITLER

Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and Field Marshal Werner von Fritsch, war minister, were in formal immediacy.

Hitler's condemnation to Ludendorff, who had moved to the hospital to be near his husband.

"I extend heartfelt sympathy," Reichsfuehrer's message said. "By the death of the great soldier, Germany has lost a great leader. The German people loses one of its best and most faithful sons, whose labors in peace and war were aimed solely at the welfare of Germany."

FOE OF FAITHS

General Ludendorff died at peace with his father, and consoled by the thought that the last great battle of his life had been won—recognition of his Germanic faith movement.

By a decree on May 12, Ludendorff's new religion, appointing paganism, was put on an equal basis with the Catholic and Protestant faiths, of which he was a bitter foe.

Official recognition of the new faith came after the general and Hitler had ended years of misunderstanding in a peace talk. Ludendorff's initiative pen and tongue had attacked Nazism, as well as Protestantism and Catholicism.

Jap Spies Overrun U. S., OGPU Vice Chief Says

MOSCOW, Dec. 20 (AP)—The secret creation of eight new high-ranking Communists shared attention today with celebration of the 20th anniversary of the Russian secret police.

At the same time, a high Soviet official said today America is "overrun with Japanese spies, and these spies seem to be an arena for American intelligence services."

This declaration was made by M. P. Trinkl, vice-commissioner of internal affairs, or vice-chief of the Soviet secret police, in an article in Pravda, official Communist newspaper.

Dismissing the narrative of the eight former Communist leaders for selling Soviet secrets to "Fascist" spies, Trinkl said:

"America, particularly the Pacific coast and the Panama Canal, is overrun with Japanese spies."

He declared the Soviet service would "continue to destroy spies, terrorists, wreckers, plotters and counter-revolutionaries of all shades," indicating the end of the "policy" is not yet in sight.

"The rule of spy and wrecking organizations," Trinkl said, "is a serious danger to our country, and these agencies have been liquidated in our country, he said. "There are still agencies which conceal themselves from blows and continue their subversive work."

The announcement of the execution said all eight victims had pleaded guilty to "treason to the Soviet Union" in behalf of a foreign country.

They were given secret trials before the military collegium and were executed.

The new edition said the 1937 British program was the "most important undertaken since the war ended." The program included three 25,000-ton battleships, two aircraft carriers, seven cruisers, 18 destroyers and six submarines.

Many other craft, Japan's requested have been authorized for 1938.

A good deal of activity is being devoted to construction of small motor craft for various duties and to the increase of anti-aircraft armament for heavier cruisers, they fall due for refit," the editor wrote.

Naval construction in other countries drew the following comment:

In the United States, "steady progress is being made, with many cruisers, destroyers and submarines in hand."

In France, "naval construction tends to lag behind, labor being apparently the chief factor."

Outlining Germany's heavy build-up program, Jane's said the German navy continues to expand."

"This all seven of the principal powers now are committed to a policy of building capital ships, a sufficient commentary on the enthusiasm shown in uniformed quarters for substitution of cheaper weapons, such as torpedo boats, submarines, or aircraft, for big ships whose further construction is being delayed."

Stand in China 23 Jap Units Mourn Panay

TOKYO, Dec. 20 (AP)—Twenty-three Japanese organizations decided at a joint session today to send a letter of sympathy to survivors of the Panay hospital ship.

They also decided to sponsor a fund to be turned over to United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew, to be disposed of as he thinks best.

The fund, they said, was charity, but was intended to demonstrate that the Japanese people were sorry about the incident.

Among participants were the American Japan Society, Rotary Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Japanese School Association, Philippines Association, Japan International Buddhist Association, Tokyo Women's College, St. Paul University, Aoyama Gakuin (a Methodist school), and Harvard Columbia, Cornell, Yale and Stanford clubs.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20 (AP)—Secretary of State Hull said today that the government had long expected to withdraw American ships and citizens from the Far East "when their appropriate function is no longer called for," but that the present "does not seem an opportune moment."

In a letter to Senator Smathers (D., N. J.), Hull outlined the government's position. Smathers had written favoring withdrawal of American ships and citizens from the danger zone.

Hull said the degree of peril to this government should affect the citizens abroad presented "many difficulties" and resulted in many conflicts of opinion.

7 Great Powers Rush Call for Big Warships

LONDON, Dec. 20 (AP)—The race for a new world naval armaments race was declared today by the publication of the authoritative yearbook, "Jane's Fighting Ships."

The 1938 edition declared that in the 15 months that elapsed since the 1936 edition appeared, there has been an abatement in orders for new warships. There are scarcely a half dozen orders for new warships, the navy will call for funds for construction of eight new destroyers and six submarines per year for the next two years.

The book cited big warship building activities of Great Britain, the United States, France, Italy, Russia, Japan and Germany.

"This all seven of the principal powers now are committed to a policy of building capital ships, a sufficient commentary on the enthusiasm shown in uniformed quarters for substitution of cheaper weapons, such as torpedo boats, submarines, or aircraft, for big ships whose further construction is being delayed."

Is Xmas? If You Aid

Poor Children Wait Santa--That's You!

Sweet, childish wishes. Right in your ear. "Merry Christmas!" they're saying.

Five short days from now. But not everywhere. Not in many a Boston home. Not even in some of the homes where there are the most children.

At least, that's how it looks just now. Whether it still looks that way next Saturday depends a good deal on you.

Mrs. C— is among those who is wondering when these five days will make all the difference in her Christmas—and the Christmas of the five youngsters, hanging in awe from 2 to 10.

LETTER EXPLAINS

A letter from her addressed to you—or just as likely: you as anyone else—tells how she feels about it.

It is not easy, she writes, in a childlike, worried hand, "to be happy when you are cold and half hungry."

"The children in school know a lot of nothing but Santa Claus and Christmas."

"I have forgotten to remember there is a real Santa Claus, but I wouldn't break their faith for a world of gold."

"Then she tells what she needs to see the children cry."

"Merry Christmas" in her home won't be just a sad memory. Not expensive toys. No dolls or chemistry sets or skates or even a stocking full of candy.

Nothing so pretentious as that. Just a Christmas for her children.

GO HUNGRY HERSELF

"The willing to go hungry myself," she writes, still in that gentle, frightened hand, "is the only thing my husband can't do."

"My husband can't do that. He can't eat. He can't sleep. He can't think of his darling not having any Christmas dinner."

"We do not receive and have no money, any kind of welfare has been tried to do the best we can. My husband thinks that, but there isn't any doubt Christmas will be far from happy for us unless we have help."

"That's the letter she sends to you—and you're of the Boston Evening American Christmas Bazaar."

And the Bazaar Fund editor's investigations unhesitatingly affirm the real need in her home.

Still, unless someone does something within the next five days, she and her children are among many in Boston who are going to be disappointed.

DEMANDS ARE BIG

Because the demands are big this Christmas, and only prompt generosity can assure enough help to go around.

"They go into thousands of Boston homes where there wouldn't be any Christmas dinner otherwise. And it can be made that not a child in any home will go hungry on Christmas."

But the time is short and, for that reason, you can help more by acting in your contribution NOW.

If it doesn't go to Mrs. C—, it will go to someone else who is just as bad off. And, while you may not see them, they will be "Merry Christmas" to the next Saturday morning.

Address it to the Christmas Bazaar Fund Editor, 13 Old Street, Boston. Large or small, it goes toward helping provide Christmas dinner for those who otherwise will have none.

In a batch of more than hundred applications received yesterday, all properly endorsed by some responsible person, there was many a letter as authentically touching as Mrs. C—.

Two brothers, one of them long unemployed, the other a partial invalid, as a Christmas dinner for a nephew and their aged parents.

"Other years," writes the applicant (and he speaks the truth), "I don't go to bed, I go to think my father or mother didn't have a Christmas dinner just because I was too stiff-necked to ask for it. Because it may be the last Christmas either of them will see."

EXCITED FROM HOME

A family of seven—four children—has just had to move into a chilly summer cottage. Excited? The father is not well, and it is long since he has worked. The mother, whether Santa Claus can find a summer cottage is questionable, but the Christmas Bazaar Fund can find it—if you will fill the basket.

Many indirect contributions to this all-important fund, which has grown to be a Boston holiday institution, will be made through entertainments planned for this week.

Among them is a dance at the exclusive Tenth Club at 46 Winchester street, tomorrow night with admission only 75 cents per person, and entertainment generously donated by Nick Lucas, radio singer and crooner star, appearing this week at the RKO theatre by Red Blanton, of the Duke Ellington orchestra, and by Jack Manard, whose orchestra will furnish the music.

Earl Casabian, manager of the club, is intent on making a record success of the affair, and will turn over the entire proceeds to the Bazaar Fund.

Large attendance is also expected tomorrow night at a Christmas Bazaar Fund and turkey raffle being given by the Andrew Jackson Associates at their clubhouse in Gloucester avenue, Allston.

But there isn't much time left for money to be raised by such methods.

Sailors Boycott Merchants in Japan Ports

Kobe, Muji, Yokohama Shops Empty, Say Tons on Arrival

By ROBERT L. GREEN

There is no progress in a boycott against Japan which, though it operates without placards or too great fanfare, is proving so effective that it is causing Japanese merchants no little worry.

Shoppers of all nations, even those of Japan's allies, are showing their disapproval of Japan's present territorialization of China by refusing to buy from the hundreds of export merchants who before the hostilities time supported Japanese trade.

Now the shops are deserted, and the East report, and Japanese port merchants are baffled.

Eddie Duchin to Play for Them

BOB BOSTON AMERICAN PHOTO

Happy anticipation seems to be the mood of Anne Clark, Boston socialite, and her fiancé, John Roosevelt, youngest son of the President (above), as they discuss plans for the forthcoming White House reception to be given in Anne's honor. The affair will be enlivened by the avocated rhythms of Eddie Duchin, former Cambridge boy, who rose to fame through his piano playing skill and later his leadership of an orchestra. Duchin said the invitation to play at the party was first extended by Anne and John as they dined in his home in a New York hotel, and later endorsed in a letter from Mrs. Roosevelt.

Silk Hi-Jackers Elude Trap

Lowell Among Notable Witnesses In Fight At State House

was urged to sign the second petition. Dr. Lowell replied:

"Yes, I refused."

"Was you refused based on the fact it is always horse racing?" Callahan asked.

"Yes," Dr. Lowell said.

"Do you think," Callahan pursued, "that the title given to the second petition explains it sufficiently?"

TITLE BRINGS BATTLE

"I never considered the matter of its title at all," was Dr. Lowell's reply. "It was enough for me that the petition sought an act of the legislature authorizing horse racing."

The question of the title of the second petition was a moot one, due to the fact that I merely refer to outlawing dog racing, says nothing about 'authorizing' horse racing.

Bernard J. Rothwell, a leading Boston merchant, was another witness.

"I assumed the second petition was in the nature of an amendment to the first," he stated.

DIDN'T READ TITLE

Rev. Frank Jennings of Newton Center, representative of the Massachusetts Council of Churches, testified that he signed the second petition, but—

"I am afraid I didn't read it as carefully as I should have," he said. "I proposed a law outlawing dog racing, but 'authorizing' horse racing, as this petition sought, was something I didn't consider."

"I didn't vote for the Legislature," he said. "I am afraid I didn't read it as carefully as I should have," he said. "I proposed a law outlawing dog racing, but 'authorizing' horse racing, as this petition sought, was something I didn't consider."

Opponents in State Dog Racing Fight

TIMOTHY CALLAHAN JOHN J. MANNING

Former District Attorney Timothy Callahan, left, declared before the State Ballot Law Commission today the anti-dog racing petition was "the most fraudulent petition ever filed in the State House." He charged its purpose had been misrepresented to businessmen who signed it. With Callahan is shown his associate, John J. Manning.

home of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Goodell Hill, who own one of the show homes in this suburban town.

His body was found by his grandnephew, William Hill. Death was attributed to coronary thrombosis found dead in the garage at the heart trouble.

Killed by Air Tank Blast

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 20 (AP)—William Konorski, who made his living cleaning out beer pipes in drinking places, was fatally hurt today when the small compressed air tank, used by him to charge it at a filling station, burst.

Rich Chicagoan, 70, Found Dead in N. Y.

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Dec. 20 (INS)—William Dwyer, 70, wealthy retired Chicago businessman, was found dead in the garage at the heart trouble.

Claims Jurisdiction

Not until then, Hadley treated, was the ballot commission, and place in the picture.

Callahan, on the other hand, asserted the commission has full jurisdiction, and charged.

This was the worst and most fraudulent petition ever filed in the State House. It constituted forgery on a scale never before brought before the commission.

Between 800 and 10,000 of the 20,000 signatures on the petition, Callahan asserted, are either forged or signatures obtained by fraud or misrepresentation.

Boston Seaman Suicide in Texas

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Dec. 20.—Frank B. Moller, 38, said to have shipped aboard the tanker Kankakee at Boston, was found dead of knife wounds here aboard the ship.

Coroners returned a verdict of suicide. They said Moller slashed his chest, throat and wrists before making the fatal plunge of a butcher knife into his heart. Moller was aboard the vessel as a stowaway. The present trip of the tanker started at a port in New Jersey.

Socialites Guide Boys' Club's Christmas Parties

By BETTY ALDEN

ACCORDING to our most loved traditions, Santa Claus has an army of energetic elves . . . who work busily all year round getting toys and gifts ready for Christmas at his palace at the North Pole . . . This afternoon he actually has not only the army of elfin assistants . . . but also social patronage . . .

Over at the Boys' Club in Charlestown the "midget" members of the club have been hard at work all day setting up and decorating a huge Christmas tree in anticipation of Santa's arrival . . . These "midgets," boys from seven to nine years old, have been making these preparations for their annual Christmas party under the authoritative and parental guidance of the club's juniors, who range from ten to thirteen years of age . . .

Mrs. Frederick Cameron Church, Jr., Mrs. Forrester A. Clark and Mrs. Frederic Winthrop, Jr., are on the list of patronesses for the party . . . which is to be held Wednesday evening . . . A marionette show, presented by members of the club who have constructed the little figures, the stage and all props themselves, will be a feature on the program which will be climaxed by the arrival of Santa, with presents of fruit and candy for everyone . . .

Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, Mrs. Rudolph Weil and Mrs. Henry G. Lapham are also patronesses for the Boys' Club Christmas party . . . The juniors and seniors will have their celebrations at different times on Thursday . . . Similar activities will be going on at Roxbury Boys' Club Wednesday and Thursday also . . .

Still other patronesses are Mrs. George Bramwell Baker, Mrs. Sinclair Weeks, Mrs. Ralph Hornblower and Mrs. Harvey P. Blood . . .

Young Set Enjoys Dancing at Clubs

RUSH AT THE BEACON HILL CHRISTMAS season has put the young folks from seeking out their favorite dance rendezvous on a Saturday evening . . . and night before last found many deb and post deb celebrating the coming holidays by dancing the latest steps at the Towne Club and the Balinese Room . . . At the Towne Club Patricia White found welcome relaxation from her arduous rehearsals for the Junior League's forthcoming Christmas play in which she will play the leading role . . . She looked very pretty in a black gown trimmed with row after row of narrow fringe and brightened with gold jewelry . . .

Also at the Towne Club, Dorothy O'Day was being welcomed home for vacation by a group of her close friends . . . Bettie wore an orchid corsage on her beautiful gown of brown starched chiffon trimmed with rosettes of peach chiffon, and among her companions were Sally Moser in black velvet, with white lace accents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Walton, Louise English, Richard Johnson, "Whitney" Whitehead and several others . . .

Many of these dance enthusiasts will be in the throng at the Towne Club's Christmas Basket Fund party tomorrow evening . . . which will add additional revenue to the Boston Evening American's worthy fund to provide Christmas dinners for needy families . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Massey Phillips, (Mary Birch) who married a little over a month ago, will be living in Cambridge until the bridegroom completes his course at Harvard Law School, where he is a party of young people at the Balinese Room Saturday evening . . . Mrs. Phillips' cousin, Mrs. Vincent Lamb, was also in the group . . . enthusiastic over plans for the holiday which include a large family party at Grandmother Bird's beautiful old mansion in Walpole . . .

Others at the Balinese Room included Mr. and Mrs. Louis McClelland, Betty Reese, Molly Nesmith, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Ellis and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wheeler . . .

Holiday Homeward Parade Under Way

THERE'S NO PLACE like home at Christmas time . . . which undoubtedly accounts for the great number of arrivals and departures on Beacon Hill this week . . . Becky Ames is headed from St. Louis, where she has been making a visit, in time to open her stocking at the Ames mansion on Commonwealth avenue . . . Virginia Ward is just back from a brief trip to Washington, D. C. . . and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Calaway (Dorothy Harding) of New York are packing their bags in preparation for a trip to Boston to spend the holiday with the bride's family, the Francis A. Hardings of Chestnut Hill . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick R. Moseley, Jr., who are also celebrating their first Christmas as Mr. and Mrs. are coming on from New York to divide the week-end between Mrs. Moseley's family (the Clifton Berrys of Milton) and the Moseley family in Dover . . .

Speaking of Christmas plans and hospitality reminds us that the spirit of goodwill toward men should be tinged with a bit of consideration and courtesy on the part of some of the people who stroll about Beacon Hill on Christmas Eve to see and take part in the famous open house ceremonies and the carol singing . . . For in the past few years perfect strangers have taken advantage of the hospitality of a great many Beacon Hill hosts . . .

The general practice of having open house on the Hill means that the mother and mistress will be living in the arms of their friends and neighbors . . . but does not mean that their hospitality has been abused . . . and if visitors to the Hill are not more considerate next Friday evening, more and more house-holders will take the welcome mat in from their doorsteps on Christmas Eve . . . and open house on Beacon Hill will cease to be . . .

It will be most regrettable if the thoughtlessness of a few will cause the end of this picturesque old Boston custom . . .

Deb Ushers At Play

First on the program is the role of the Phi Alpha Kappa society and Stag Club who combine to present the only pre-Christmas party on Beacon Hill . . .

Now that the entire college set has descended on the town on Yuletide leave, the calendar has been converted into a date book of parties with practically every alumnae group and club sponsoring some affair in the next fortnight . . .

It will be the third party of the group with Peggy Finley of Belmont, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Finley, serving as chairman . . .

Trinity Alumnae To Conduct Fete

For the week after Christmas, the Boston Chapter of Trinity raised her curtain on holiday festivities with a champagne raffle and dance . . .

Tuesday night has been chosen by graduates of Boston Academy of Notre Dame who are offering a chicken supper, an evening of singing and a few more insurance features at their annual reunion . . .

Assisting them is a number of pretty girls, Alice Murphy of Belmont, Dorothy Grimes of Newton, Alice Quarta of Newton, Rosemary O'Connell of Somerville and Mary C. O'Connell of Brookline . . .

Miss Mary Frances Falvey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Falvey of Beacon street, is enjoying the busy Christmas season along with many of her sister debutantes . . .

She will be one of the debutante ushers at the forthcoming Junior League play on December 29 and 30, and on Christmas Day she and her parents will be guests at a family party at the home of her aunt, Miss Julia Prendergast . . .

Dancers' Club Plans Party

This season's celebration of the New Year marks a new high in novelty and ingenuity . . .

"The New Dancers' Club has planned a house party in Lexington which is to include to baby 1938 with Junior Philanthropists are gathering for a late afternoon tea . . .

The Dancers' Club frolic will be staged in the exclusive Cary estate in Lexington, a spacious mansion in the foothills of the Concord turlupie . . .

Other representatives on the in-house committee include Mrs. Robert H. Daly, Mrs. Edward Coleman, Mrs. Finn Beckman, Mrs. E. C. Farmer, Mary O'Brien, Marion Healy, Betty Cairns and Sam Thayer . . .

Doctor Asks Aid For Clinic Fund

A plea in behalf of the Boston Eye Hospital, which has received $50,000 was sounded today by Dr. Elizabeth Taylor Bannan, one of Boston's best known women physicians, and chairman of the women's department . . .

"The generous spirit of our people is being called for in the most important way," she declared. "Every effort is being made to put the clinic on a substantial financial basis . . .

"A little doctoring often will forestall a lot of charity. When head-wrings are neglected after a day or illness, often times it reduces a whole family to permanent dependence on public charity . . .

Margaret Verhooff, debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Verhooff of Brookline, is spending her Christmas vacation from Vassar in an interesting and different manner . . .

PATTERN

Pride of Any Junior

By MARIAN MARTIN

Size to be the pride of a Junior's wardrobe, is Pattern 9489 . . .

Smooth lines may be enhanced by a trim belt, while bright buttons may highlight the jumper front . . .

And who could resist the neatly tailored blouse with long or short sleeves and a youthful, girlish flare . . .

Marian Martin knows that this two-piece outfit may serve as a whole wardrobe—more, with the jumper of wool or crepe, and several variations of the blouse in bright synthetic cotton . . .

Revoke License For Mae Skit, Connery Asks

Drastic Action Urged Of U. S. Commission For Radio Station

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Representative Connery (D-Mass.) demanded today that the Federal Communications Commission revoke the license of the radio station from which an "Adam and Eve broadcast" featuring Mae West was originated last week.

Connery declared the program was indecent.

"The communications commission already has ordered the National Broadcasting Company to submit a copy of the broadcast, as well as copies of the contract between the company and NBC and names of persons which reproduced the program," Connery said.

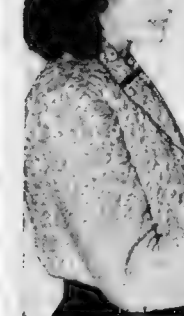

Connery, in a letter to Frank R. McNinch, commission chairman, said the commission was "infringing the communications act" and that he had received a "volume of complaints" against the program, which he termed "indecent." He stated the very nature of the act is to protect the public from the broadcasting of indecent material.

He announced he would demand a "drastic investigation" of the commission at the next session of the House. Connery wrote McNinch, "your commission either functioned in the interests of the American people, or admitted your incompetence and permitted the President to place men on the commission who will function in the interest of, and for the benefit of, the American people, rather than satellites acting for the additional enrichment of a private firm."

He asked Connery, "Is it true the president of the National Broadcasting Company personally authorized the broadcast of this program?"

Modern Nursery Tale: Or the Origin of The Silver Skates

THE LAST PEOPLE ONE WOULD EVER SUSPECT of going to the nursery for their ideas are the men, promotional boosters of the Boston American and Sunday Advertiser. These are the same ones who stimulate the heart, liver and circulation for the twin journals by such interesting oddities as the Outboard Motor regatta on the Charles, the Hole-in-One tournament at Franklin Park and the All-America boxing bouts at the B. & M. depot. They usually stick to adult affairs, but in fostering the annual Silver Skates derby at the Garden on January 23, they have taken a page from childhood's literature which dates back to Mother Goose and Elsie Dinamoor.

The original story of the Silver Skates can be found in any junior Christmas library in deluxe editions up to $3.50 and is one of those "patches to plenty" themes which made such boyhood authors as Horatio Alger, Ralph Barbour and General Hugh Johnson rich on royalties in a time when Grandpa spent his kid earnings for paper-backs.

In the original version Hans was one of those modest, but clean-breaking kids in the clinches like the winning formula of Paul Bowser's wrestling manuscripts. As the more offbeat of all Raff Brinkers, the Haarlem (Holland and not Manhattan) clubber, Hans copied the steering scooters from a lot of wacky and therefore not popular, rags including the pumpekin he got to the banker's millions named Carl Schummel.

The First Silver Skates

THE REAL SILVER SKATES RACE HAPPENED long ago, but it might have been the model on which Pasadena's Rose Bowl boosters copied their New Year's football promotion. Because a group of Haarlem go-get-em real estate pluggers had a section of swamp property on their hands which they wished to unload as residential lots at fancy figures. So they got the Haarlem Chamber of Commerce to offer a pair of Silver Skates as the grand prize of their winter sports carnival in order to get free publicity in the sport pages and attract a big tourist stampede.

The big race was to be staged on a frozen canal outside Haarlem and beside the real estate buildings. So the boosters hired a battery of publicity experts to prep the newspapers with free copy and promotion luncheons and to crowd the winter sport enthusiasts were being reservations from a over Holland and flocking up to give hotel keepers the horrors by tossing empty flasks down the elevator shafts and hiccups all night through the hallways—as has been the custom ever since at kindred affairs like the World Series and the Kentucky Derby.

On the day of the race Hans showed up in his tattered clothes and, the book says (I quote) "Dunder and Blizen," said Carl (Ed. note: this is a Dutch cutler "Try my hide"). "Dunder and Blizen," said Carl, "look at yonder wooden shod urchin in the patched britches (unquote).

That kind of stuff might have gone in Haarlem, but let me tell you, no anarchy royalist like Carl could get to first base in the Boston American and Sunday Advertiser derby. Because at the first "dunder" Irving Jaffee, the director, would have him out by the slack of his neck. The more patches, the more popularity with the Amerk and Sun-Ad (2c daily, 10c Sunday).

Katy, the Canal Keeper's Wench

IN THE ORIGINAL SILVER SKATES STORY the Schummel kid had a banker-papa who, like George P. Marshall of the Washington Redskins, owned the town's wet wash business and had a thumb in about every other profitable promotion. So, naturally, Carl owned a pair of the latest Jaffee-model, Olympic-style skates with the patent heel clamp and the neversup toe (priced $7.50 at all Boston stores).

Carl also had a heavy lid on the heart side toward little Katy, the canal keeper's daughter who was quite the most huscious wench in Ward 1. Katy was a full-busted, curvilinear frail with hay-colored braids and built beneath the neck like Eleenor Holm Jarrett, the U. S. lady backstroke swimmer. So all the Haarlem lads were bowlegged about Katy and especially this Schummel cluck.

But—and here comes the payoff, Katy was muchly lower lip toward Carl for a. of P. S. his own and pretty natural about Hans, who, asked something like Nick Luttre, the sad-eyed blond wrestler, but no doubt without Nick's habit of answering "E-ya!" like a sea elephant.

Hans Was a Long Shot

ANYWAY, CARL AND THE REST OF the vocational amateur skaters who had come to Haarlem for the race under cash inducements, generous expense vouchers, haberdashery charge accounts and a week on the cuff, gave Hans a big Bos-Hans in a cheer with plenty of moss, cackles and whinnies in it. They didn't want the course cluttered with any stiff.

But Hans had paid his 25c entry fee to the Haarlem A. A. U. and was properly registered. So the A. A. U., whose circulars were printed by J. Frank Facey and whose contracts for all the prize jewelry, including the Silver Skates, was placed with Al J. Lull, couldn't very well give Hans the Killarney Flip. But just before the heat went on, the Haarlem bookmakers, who operated openly against the law and were allowed to give the customers a pretty brutal teasing around, sent their brown running through the crowd to grab all they could, with the exception of the dice. There wasn't any Dave Wilson among the newspaper handcarriers and hence no word for special on Hans. So when Hans skidded home in his ragged pants and home-made skates and paid off at 50 to 1, the victory was pretty unpopular with the shorelanders, who when his number was called, stormed the judges' stand and demanded to see the photo finish.

But Katy, having laid $2 worth of honeycomb money on Hans' race, was fit to wriggle out of her britches, especially as a U. S. peace and movie magazine showered Hans with an immediate million dollars.

And that, more or less, is the nursery origin of the Boston American and Sunday Advertiser's Silver Skates Derby on January 23, the stark and naked drama of which will be covered by pre-natalistic, plus a two-page spread of realistic pictures.

Prices to Remain Same For Title Garden Show

Although Wednesday night's Yvon Robert-Danno O'Mahony wrestling match is for the world championship, Promoter Paul Bowser has not boosted his admission prices. The tops will be $2.50, including tax.

When I lowered my prices from $3.50 to $2.50 tops a year ago I assumed that for all world championship struggles the top price would revert to $3.50. Paul Bowser said, "I have in the past the latter's first home state of the schoolboy league three years back and has been 20%." The big Garden boasts one of their great guns for Dartmouth.

Kelly, first string guard on the football eleven and a former Cambridge Latin School punter and footballer, is playing on the defense for the invaders.

"Bud" is a former Malrose high school player.

There's no fun in being a training partner for Danno as the Irishman is sparing nobody in his effort to be at top shape for his match with Robert. Jack Zarnas is the victim who is about to be tossed, and not lightly either, over Danno's shoulder. Jack will be one happy gent when this match is over for, from the workouts, one would think Zarnas is Robert.

Danno Predicts Victory Over Robert

'No Irishman Can Beat Me,' Champ Counts

Danno O'Mahony, former world heavyweight wrestling champion, is set for a large gathering of subscribers at the Garden with Yvon Robert, French-Canadian, who won the title at Montreal a year ago last July.

"Danno is faster and stronger than when he was champion," one wrestling expert declared. "Watch him go from hold to hold like a snake to beat Robert for my money."

Danno first wrestled with Jack Zarnas, who is now in the Garden after a few years ago the first round with Richard, who is a mixed German and a son of 20 million of Louis, who is in the Garden.

After each training match ended in a confidence attack in Boston after a long automobile trip from his native Montreal.

Robert appears in perfect shape. His cheeks are rosy. He does not seem to have an ounce of extra weight on him.

"That Robert is in for the surprise of his life," Danno said, as he was on the rubber table taking a vigorous going over. "He is better, physically, condition today than I ever was as champion."

"The worst of owning that life doesn't bother me today. I will beat him no doubt, but he will be wanting to put away his wrestling top forever and a day."

Danno's Title Bid Robert to Face Irishman Is Ready Severe Mat Test

By JACK CONWAY

THE WORLD'S heavyweight championship wrestling bout between Yvon Robert, title holder, and Dan O'Mahony, youthful Irish challenger, at the Garden on Wednesday night will furnish the high spot of the New England mat season.

Mr. Boston

It is the match mat fans in this country and in Canada have been eager to see. It will witness a terrible battle for supremacy between the two greatest wrestlers in the world.

Although Robert holds the title there are hundreds of thousands of fans who are of the opinion the aggressive, colorful O'Mahony is his master.

It required 18 months to sign these big fellows. Robert won the championship from O'Mahony in Montreal back in 1936. Until now he has refused to give Danno a return bout.

O'Mahony will enter the ring as a favorite on Wednesday night. The speculative element is convinced Robert was favored by French officials the night he stripped the son of Ballyheob, West Cork, Ireland, of his title in Montreal.

In the Montreal bout, Robert kicked O'Mahony on the jaw after each wrestler had scored a fall. Yvon then pounced on Danno, and was declared the winner by the referee.

Yvon is a pugilist and has been the victim of wrestling promoters who have tried to make him a prizefighter. He was defeated by a professional boxer in a fight which was a dissonant note.

It is not every basketball player who has become somewhat of a star.

In fact, the star which has been born out of Chelsea High basketball team has become the leading source for Terrier hoop stars.

Right now there are as many as four Chelsea High players performing on the Boston and New York varsity and freshman teams.

Dizzy Dean Voted Season's Biggest Disappointment

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (AP)—This is Christmas week so Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean might as well get the Yuletide news that he's been voted the disappointment of the 1937 sports show.

Dean, who was voted the "biggest disappointment" of the year by a vote of 10,000,000, was the only player to be voted "biggest disappointment" in the year.

Basketball Revolutionized

By MURRAY KRAMER

Basketball is in for the wildest winter in its history. . . those rule makers were right when they said that a slight change like the elimination of the center tap would so completely revolutionize the game.

Scores are now hitting over and over again. . . for years, Rhode Island State boasted of the fact that its high scoring machine averaged a point a minute. . . a team which is said to 40 points in a just an hour.

In fact it's so fast that it is virtually impossible for anybody to play a full game. . . the premium on fast breaks and the fact that the high scoring machine averaged a point a minute. . . a team which is said to 40 points in a just an hour.

Only strongly, the rule change was made to take away the supposed unfair advantage of any team with one of these lightning fast players. . . this winter he is adding Hershey, Penn. to his list.

Irish operates on a same basis as the rest. . . he shows the colleges that their limited gymnastics they cannot hope to draw more than a couple of thousand, and he guarantees better than twice that amount for every game he scores.

And realize he must have a basketball team in the country, regardless of the cost. . . Long Island University is the fair-haired team with the New York crowd. . . L. I. U. had run up a streak of 14 victories before it was snapped last season. . . this year it is away to another great start. . . the five games, the team has scored 125 points.

Wall Street More Cheerful As Stock Prices Advance

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20 (INS).—The present serious plight of American railroads is due to the "wild greed" of Wall Street banking interests, Senator Truman, Missouri Democrat, told the Senate today in a lengthy speech in which he also assailed the Interstate Commerce Commission and Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson of Chicago.

Acting chairman of a Senate subcommittee investigating railway finance, Truman intimated that legislation giving the government added control over financial structures of railroads would soon be placed before Congress.

AGAINST U. S. OWNERSHIP

Truman said he did not favor government ownership "at this time," but added:

"This situation deserves your

I don't think we can solve the problem by pouring more government money into broken-down financial structures, or by merely tinkering with rates. The whole structure must be overhauled. Rates, finance, management, coordination, consolidation must be studied.

But no one through the kind of panacea that Wall Street has put forward in the past—panaceas that are basically and fundamentally unsound and which were the interest of Wall Street at the expense of the public interest.

Anything what he termed "the selfish interests," Truman explained:

"There is no magic solution to the condition of the railroads. But one thing is certain—any formula, however scientific, will work without men of proper character responsible for physical and financial creation of the roads

ACCUSES ICC
Truman accused members of the Interstate Commerce Commission of being too accessible to parties interested in railroad receiverships and reorganization. He said:

"These able and intelligent lawyers, counsellors, attorneys, whatever you want to call them, have interviews and hold conferences with the members of the Interstate Commerce Commission, take them to dinner, and discuss pending matters with them."

"The commission is the representative of the public and it has its powers, also, but the ordinary government mine-run bureaucratic lawyer is no more a match for the amiable gentlemen who represent the great railroads, insurance companies and work without men of proper character. Ordinary lambs is a match for the butcher."

Truman assailed "Wall Street," and the commission as frequently blocking "effective" reorganization and regulation of the railroads.

"If Wall Street had produced the necessary statesmen to run the railroads, they'd never have needed regulation," he said. "If Wall Street had dealt properly with the commission, and the commission had cut out the private conference with Wall Street lawyers and bankers and not let them argue their cases in private, we might have had some sort of effective financial regulation of the railroads."

Asserting that Wall Street is "still employing the best plans to serve greed and selfish interest," Truman warned that control over railroads will ultimately be taken out of its hands.

Drawing on his investigation of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Truman said "the court and lawyer situation in these gigantic receiverships and reorganizations needs public attention badly."

He assailed Judge Wilkerson, who is presiding over the present receivership of the C. M. & St. P., as "the most notorious receivership judge on the federal bench."

The Lord is good, a strong hold in the day of trouble and He knoweth ther that trust in Him.—Nahum I, 7.
The text for today is suggested by the Rev. Walter McLane, Episcopal minister, Boston. The next text will be suggested by the Rev. Dr. Harold Hickey, Dorchester Memorial Church.

The Editor Says:

UNIFORM LEGISLATION in the six New England States to control the sale of revolvers and other small firearms has been recommended by the Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut commissions on interstate co-operation.

We can think of no other suggestion more conducive to public safety. Identical and INTELLIGENT laws curbing gun toting are a necessity, not only for this section but FOR ALL THE COUNTRY.

At present it is possible for a gunman to secure a weapon in one State, where the laws on purchasing and carrying are loosely drawn, and use the revolver or pistol in another State where more severe laws are in operation. The recent spectacle of the Brady gang "shooting it out" with G-Men in Bangor, Me., was proof of that.

It is well at this time to recall the good advice given us a few weeks ago by Austin H. MacCormick, New York Commissioner of Correction, who asked:

"If you really want to do something about murder, gangsterism and terrorism, WHY NOT REGULATE THE SALE OF FIREARMS IN A MANNER BORN OF COMMON SENSE? How much longer are you going to permit lobbies to balk restrictive legislation?"

WE CAN'T FORGET

—that in Maine almost anyone who can sign his name is able to obtain a license to put a gun in his pocket. Nor can we pass over the fact that in Massachusetts the Legislature has so effectively muzzled police officials that they are legally stripped of the power to get vital information from persons seeking to carry revolvers.

In other States, the situation is hardly better. After reading some of their firearms legislation, you would almost think that pistols were lollipops or chewing gum.

When we wake up to the fact that a killer is as dangerous as his gun, we may be inclined to write laws that do not make our statute books resemble joke books. The waking up cannot come too quickly.

ANOTHER TRADE PACT

—is to be negotiated with Italy. That is the information from Washington, where Secretary Hull announces a temporary commercial agreement has already been signed with Rome. This, of course, will in no way interfere with the tariff reductions the Administration seems determined to grant Czechoslovakia.

When is this thing going to stop? This question is important, for we cannot overlook the grim fact that, in the first eight months of this year, this country spent more than two billion dollars on foreign goods.

But, during the same period, foreign nations bought from us goods to the value of nearly 200 million dollars LESS than they sold us!

We call this an "unfavorable balance of trade," which it surely is. Products of our farms and factories are without markets because of it, American workers are without jobs and wages because of it.

And it becomes daily more and more apparent that we cannot play Santa Claus to the world and at the same time expect prosperity at home.

BOSTON COLLEGE MEN

—are outspoken when the discussion turns to matrimony. They are not particularly anxious to marry college woman. And they lean toward the tried and true theory that "it's the girl, not the education, that counts."

Our authority is "The Heights," the college's undergraduate newspaper, which is conducting a poll of students' opinions.

Clearly this is a matter for Beatrice Fairfax, hardly for a mere editor. Yet it's our belief that the young woman without a university background will be just as good a wife as the female Einstein. The important thing is character, which, unlike a diploma, does not come nicely tied with ribbons.

Also, it's our suspicion that when the "right girl" appears, the B. C. man will marry her, even if she has a half-dozen degrees.

SHORTER SHIRT TAILS

—have been decreed in Germany by the Economic Ministry to save cloth. So henceforth the Nazi's garment will shrink two inches, fore and aft.

Ordinarily the shirt problem in Hitler's "paradise" would not concern us; too many people have sufficient worries of their own, right at home. Yet this problem is an exception. It does concern us, for some of our "bright minds" are already suggesting that we do a little shirt tail trimming, also, to save cloth.

No economic panacea could be more harmful to New England prosperity. With machines and men able to make enough material to give every man in the country a half-dozen shirts, our welfare depends upon making them LONGER or, at least, MORE NUMEROUS. Der Fuehrer may keep his abbreviated shirts. We certainly do not want them.

A Pointed Lesson

As Chinese defenders retreat sullen before the Japanese advance, the lesson of age-long history is repeated: A pacifist nation, which neglects its defenses, falls easy prey to a militant invader.

The Roosevelt Administration has restored to America its national defense policies.

Let these policies be carried out, and America will never suffer the fate of ravaged China.

New York Day by Day

DEARY: A spitting of snow and nip in the air. And came a crate of apples from Lucius Beebe's orchards and a brave letter from John T. McCutcheon. So for a turn of Tudor City before squaring off to a platter of Colonel Frank Jones' Kentucky sausage and apple rings.

Then to see some of Fred Detweiler's fine savanues and came upon the new Congressman from our district, Bruce Barton, whose greeting was "Good afternoon, constituent!" And along the highway passed George Arliss, the play actor, moping along in that stooped-over walk of his.

Dined on a meat ball soup, watching the crowds in spectral Harry Richman, who seemed utterly well-behaved with his hanky-panky. To bed, re-reading some short tales by Kipling.

It used to be the most beautiful girls in town could be found at the glove centers of large department stores. Nobody knew precisely why. But today many outstanding beauties are the elevator operators in the same establishments. Chicago's Marshall Field's was first to exploit them in their men's department. Dorothy Lamour was once one.

What with all the good looking, the monied lady in the book department at Macy's and the several stunning redheads at Wanamaker's, prowling around a department store is becoming increasingly interesting day by day.

The Dining in Old New York exhibit at the Museum of the City of New York rates a visit. Especially to see the photograph of the famous horseshoe dinner at old Sherry's, given by the late C. K. G. Billings. The photo shows the diners in the saddle and formed into a circle around the festal board. About that time, too, all the Sunday supplements were packed with pictures of Pittsburgh millionaires and the Broadway chorus girls depicting those mad scenes none of which was complete without the inescapable slipper filled with Mumm's extra dry.

The stunt dinners are no longer given in public restaurants because of the fear of press backfire. Such didos are staged in the pen houses.

Among metropolitan evanescences is the Greek hand-pull candy kitchen with the window display of a giant moustached fellow lunging enormous ropes of candy over a huge hoop. There used to be one up a side street near the Globe, and its best customer was Charles Dillingham. Also one near the stage entrance of the Winter Garden. Always near large theaters, their best patronage was among machine goers.

Some of my happiest hours were spent watching the Saturday matinee of vaudeville at the old Columbia in Cincinnati. My seat was a 35-cent in the first row of the balcony and I was fortified with a ten-cent bar of Mullane's taffy. Taffy and vaudeville! Many acts I knew by heart, as did most regulars.

It was at the Columbia Edward Hubbard made his only and heart-breaking vaudeville appearance. After his first few lines, a gentle razzing started in the gallery and grew into a demonstration that Hubbard in bewilderment fled not only from the theater, but took the next train out of town. It was the first and only time I had ever seen such cruelty in the theater and most of us who loved vaudeville left the playhouse a bit sheep-faced and ashamed.

Next to the Hubbard incident, the coolest reception in the theater was at old Hammerstein's, following the appearance of a couple of high-jumping ladies billed, after the pistol-pulling of the millionaire W. E. D. Stokes, as The Shooting Showgirls. They walked off in dead silence—not a single handclap.

That's That

There isn't any question that the President of the American Federation of Labor is correct in his assertion that the most effective method of stimulating home ownership is cutting real estate taxes.

A reduction in real estate taxes is not only tax relief needed. The real estate tax is only ONE of the taxes the property owner has to pay. He is stuck for all the multitude of excise taxes and utility taxes. The utility system is a victim of income taxes.

The American Builder, in its November issue, declares "the greatest single obstacle to home ownership is the archaic system that puts 60 per cent of the tax burden on real estate, race to see which can find the most new sources of revenue. We ALSO see how the property owner is being taxed in his pocket."

The official tax collectors are only a part of the army of tax takers. Thousands and thousands of business men have been drafted into the tax collector's army. The filling station operator who disposes of his own property is taxed on his own property.

Every filling station operator is a tax collector whether he wants to be that or not. He is collecting Federal and State taxes on gasoline.

Human Side of the News

SOMEONE, arguing religion with John Knox said, "There is only a sheet of paper between your church and mine." "Yes," said Knox, "but the whole Bible is written on it."

Similarly, just a column-rule may elude deep seas of irreconcilable belief. The other day there was a story from Washington about a machine just patented, which, when you press a button, kicks out full-fashioned stockings—bra-rup—just like that! All you do is press the button.

"One operator in a booth will run an entire knitting mill," says the story. And the make-up man, grim Caliban in his cave, juggling matters of high destiny, plans right up against an address by Dr. Robert A. Millikan, famous scientist-economist, maintaining that machines MAKE EMPLOYMENT, rather than destroy it, and insisting that the way out of our troubles lies in more power production.

You can find an antithesis like this in the paper almost every day—the $50,000 deb party and the suicide a few block away because of impending starvation. Such items are quite apt to get into adjoining columns, and the whole history of the human race is written on the dividing column-rule.

As to machines and unemployment, Dr. Millikan—like Henry Ford and many others—states some plausible figures in proof of his assertion that the only road for the machine is straight ahead.

"Let us look at this matter of unemployment," he says. "United States statistics show that the percentage of the population gainfully employed has steadily increased during the last 80 years, when science has been most rapidly applied."

"The chief reason for this is found in the greater use of power machines in this country than abroad. Definite statistics show that the increase in real wages of unskilled men has not been greater than that of unskilled men in the past."

Dr. Millikan and other scientists of his school insist that machines so steadily raise the standard of living and so steadily create new demands, that any temporary and isolated displacement of workers is quickly followed by new and better opportunities of labor.

The automobile is their standard Exhibit A, displacing hay-shovelers, wheelwrights and the like, and creating hundreds of thousands of new and better jobs. Hence, their logic of the new stocking machine would foresee a wide and healthful stimulus to the textile industry, reflected in profits and dividends, creating increased demands for all textiles, spreading up the mills in other lines and re-absorbing the ousted stocking weavers.

That's an old quarrel, this contention between men and machines. In early eighteenth century England, the workers smashed the weaving machines as fast as they were built. Late in the century Adam Smith didn't leave the workers a leg to stand on, in his brilliant rationalization of the new industrial epoch, but the workers weren't listening.

And the argument is the same today as it was 150 years ago. The machines keep on whirling with quickening tempo. There seems to be no turning back. I have a poignant memory of a fine old telegraph operator, on relief because of the news ticker. Dr. Millikan probably fails to impress him.

But who can challenge Dr. Millikan in his assertion that science has enriched life and raised living standards throughout the world? And who can say that we should scrap them and go back to handcraft?

March of Events

IF WE do not get into this Asiatic brawl it will not be our fault.

We have poked our fingers in Japan's pie for 32 years.

In 1905 President Theodore Roosevelt induced Japan to make terms with Russia before Japan was through with the big bear.

In 1907 we led all the nations of Europe in protesting to Japan against the annexation of Korea.

In 1908-10 some of our leading financiers tried to "internationalize" the South Manchurian railway, which Japan had developed.

In 1915 we took a stand in opposing Japan's "21 demands" on China.

In 1918-19 we tried to discourage Japan from occupying Siberia.

In 1921 we called the Washington Conference, which put a limit on Japan's navy. We also practically compelled Japan to evacuate China's Shantung Province.

In 1931 the United States, single-handed, deserted by Great Britain and her pals, protested to Japan against the occupation of Manchuria.

In 1937 Secretary of State Hull directly named Japan as the aggressor in China.

Assessing people's minds NEVER CONSUMED in those acts of dangerous interference with matters that do not concern them.

We have rushed in for years where England fears to tread—WHICH IS JUST JOHN BULL'S GAME.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Alexander Woolcott were one day joining in the sun at Woolcott's country place, discussing whether or not American people should NEVER CONSUMED in those acts of dangerous interference with matters that do not concern them.

Woolcott said decidedly—YES. Roosevelt wanted "to be known."

The result was that Woolcott played the Pied Piper of verse over the radio. He asked the public to send Theodore Roosevelt and his sister, Alice Roosevelt Longworth, their favorite poems.

Out of drawers, old books, ancient wallets, from the Bowery to San Francisco's Russian Hill, there came books, poems, poems, poems, some famous, some of them almost quite forgotten.

At Oyster Bay 40,000 poems arrived at Mr. Roosevelt's door.

About 100 hundred were selected. They now appear in "The Desk Drawer Anthology: Poems for the American people," compiled and selected by Alice Roosevelt Longworth and Theodore Roosevelt.

This book is worth a ton of professional folderol on "American Culture," for the average American has really compiled this volume. It is what he likes in poetry, and it is well worth reading.

Is Mickey Mouse the greatest of all international spies? What's Mickey's politics? Is he Communist, a Socialist, a Capitalist, a Royalist, a Republican, a Democrat, an Iron Guard, a Popular Frontist, a Cagoulard or just an old-time Mugwump?

Mickey, my boy, you will have to show your American people that you have been turned down in Yugoslavia for conspiracy to overthrow a king and put someone else on the throne.

You have committed an offense against the Second, kid king of Yugoslavia. You are barred, verboten, sunk, liquidated.

You may soon be executed, ramp up, in Soviet Russia for being a Rightist, a Trotskyite or an American.

Then I heard the voice of Mickey as it squeaked into my ear:

"I've heard it said that a cat may look at a king, but what kind of king is that who's afraid to look at a mouse!"

The Political Parade

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—The most amazing thing in Washington is the fact that a Congress of governors should be willing to consider the farm and labor regulation bills.

Sufficient in themselves to account for the sinking spell of business and industry in the closing weeks of the year, the manner in which they have been shoved along toward enactment has been a disconcerting innovation.

Not in many years have two bills of such consequence to the American people been written on the floors of Senate and House in the midst of conditions little short of chaotic and scenes of turmoil and confusion.

The labor administrator whom it was proposed in the amendment House bill to set up as the unrestrained dictator of labor—and hence all American industry—was given by the terms of this section such powers as ever, even in times of war, have been conferred upon anybody under the government.

This labor dictator was to serve for life! So seriously was the provision drawn—or was it drawn carelessly—that no term of office for this gigantic peninsula was fixed.

It was not until the bill was almost upon its final roll call that the seriousness of this provision became known, and steps were taken to put a limitation upon the dictator's term of office. As the original provision fixed it, once in office he could have been removed, only by the processes of impeachment, or the repeal of the whole act.

As a crowning fiasco it was provided that the actions of this dictator over labor and industry should not be subject to the review of any authority outside the government. Yet in this unprecedented and un-American bill was being driven through the House bewildered members querulously wondered of one another what was the matter with business!

The shattering of party lines in Congress which began when common repugnance to the Supreme Court bill brought Republican and Democratic conservatives together, has been greatly increased by the party split on the Democratic side on the farm and labor regulation bills. The barrier of the center aisle has been broken down in the House.

A better feeling has been growing up in the House between Republicans and Democrats of the old-fashioned type.

But it would be a mistake to assume that anything like the formation of a coalition party is actually being planned. For one thing, the Republican leaders at both ends of the Capitol have their own party solidarity to think about.

Opposition to the administration's regimentation bills, however, laying a psychological groundwork for a possible coalition movement in 1940. There are no signs that it can possibly come in 1938.
